Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

Turning from wars, and strikes, from nazis and communists, from fascists and blatherskites, let us consider something that is ancient, elemental, something that calls up the golden years of Nevada County. We refer to the late Lola Montez, whose former home still stands in Grass Valley, and whose ways with men are still emulated by adventurous women here and elsewhere.

That the beautiful Lola is recalled is due to a "find" made by H. P. Davis, mining engineer, whose hobby consists of acquiring things old and rare. He has found a copy of the Nevada Journal, published in "Nevada, California," March 26, 1858. In this journal appears the "Autobiography of Lola Montez," as she herseld revealed it in a legal examination in New York, where she had been summoned to prove the bad character of one Jobson. Incidentally the newspaper is a beautiful specimen of printing of that faraway handset era. No flaring headlines to jar the reader awake er to scare him to death, but a beautiful harmony of type, disclosing to the world the last word from Washington and New York as it came by clipper to San Francisco.

As we have often suspected, Lola Montez, as revealed in this "legal examination", lacked something in cogency. In other words she was inclined to be "scrattery." For her there was no sequence, no cause and effect. So she gave surprising answers to her inquisitors, answers that may have been intended to conceal her naughty past, to put her questioners on the spot, or, perhaps, to lay the foundation for a new adventure. But here is her story, or at least one of her stories, as she told it nearly a hundred years ago in the City of New York.

"My name is Lola Montez; my family name was Marie Rosanna Gilbert. Q. Where were you born? A. In the beautiful town of Limerick. Q. How old are you? A. Thirty three. Q. When were you born. A. Count; I cannot tell. I was not present when I was born; I have had two husbands and I am on the point of having a third; my first husband was Capt. James. Q. Were you maried to Capt. James? A. The ring was put on my finger by a clergyman, but my spirit was never united to him. Q. What other husband have you had?

A. Now wait a moment; I'd never have you to be sure; I was married to James near Dublin; I was a child of fifteen; he ran away with another lady about a year after I was married; I was living in Mugeer, India, then; I lived there about seven years; from there I came to England, I think, in 1842; I married about the year 1840; I don't know how long I remained in London after I returned; a few months; I was on the stage, and practicing under the instruction of a Spaniard named Espa; I was lodging with an old Scotchman and his wife; my father was Adjutant General in the Bengal army.

Q. Were you living with any man at that time? A. I never lived with any man since my husband left me; my husband charged me with an intrigue with a man named Capt. Lennox, on shipboard, but it was a false accusation made by him, because he was then living with Mrs. Capt. Lomar, of the 21st regiment; I went from London to Spain, and all over that country; I remained in Spain a few months, learning to dance! I was traveling per-

Local Men Are Theft Suspects

Trio Held For Federal Grand Jury By Government Authorities

Three Nevada City men are held in the county jail in Sacramento under $2,500 bonds each for the federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy and forgery in connection with the theft of five United States postal savings bonds.

The trio, Carlton Orzalli, 20; Arthur Yarborough, 24, and George Jones, 46, were ordered held at a hearing before United States Commissioner Adellia McCabe.

They were arrested and taken to Sacramento by Chief of Police Max Solaro of this city and Undersheriff William D. Woods. Orzalli, on probation in this county on a burglary charge was apprehended in Reno.

The bonds, each of $50 denomination, were stolen from Florence Dodge of this city. Orzalli is charged with forging the name of the owner on the certificates. The others are charged with conspiracy in an attempt to dispose of the bonds.

Nevada County officers yesterday released Ernest Kistle, 19, and Thad Baker, 21, who were taken into custody for questioning in the case.

Death Comes To Sister Of Rev. David Ralston

Mrs. Swaffer's death followed several years illness. During the past nine months she had been bedridden.

The deceased was a nattive of Ireland. She was the wife of the late Charles Swaffer, who died four years ago in San Diego. Since that time until her death Mrs. Swaffer had made her home with Rev. and Mrs. Ralston.

Besides her brother here, the deceased leaves two other brothers, Frank Ralston of Ireland and James Ralston of Canada.

Firemen Stop Ammonia Leak In Market Here, Using New Gas Masks

Fire Chief Luther Marsh and Firemen James Penrose and Max Solaro used the local department's new gas masks to penetrate the ammonia filled Cardinal Store Tuesday night to stop a leak in an ammonia tank in the meat market.

The Native Sons of the Golden West, who were meeting in the lodge room above the market, first became aware of the escaping ammonia fumes and notified the local fire department.

Completes Assessment Work—

Gold Is Where You Find It

In all about five ounces of the precious metal was obtained, enough to pay the costs of the moving of Draper's assay office to Commercial and Pine Streets.

Hal Draper Makes Moving Pay--Discoves Gold While Moving Assay Office Here

The drudgery of moving to Hal Draper, local assayer, became more or less of a game after he discovered the dirt on the floor and the dirt underneath the floor of the building he is vacating was virtually rich in pay dirt.

Nearly four ounces of the metal was panned from the floor of the assay shop. Draper lost no time in setting up a sluice box, tearing up the floorboards and start sluicing the dirt beneath the floor. His activities produced another ounce with the likelihood of more.

The building being vacated by Draper is one of the oldest brick buildings in Nevada City. It was constructed about 1852. The building is to be torn down to make way for a large parking lot.

It is believed the gold found by Draper escaped from the melting pot when the metal was being bricked. An assay shop has been located in the building for many years.

Group Accused Of Conspiracy In Action Filed By Nevada City Man In Sierra Superior Court

Damages totaling $510,500 are asked by John Hampton Lashbaugh of Nevada City, a mining operator, against W B. Brinker, Willis De Walt, U. S. N. Johnson, George Williams and four John Does in a suit filed in the superior court charging the defendants with conspiracy to defraud him of his interests in the Seven Aces Mine near Alleghany.

A year ago Lashbaugh and his wife, Mrs. Margaret Luthena Lashbaugh, were involved in a sensational divorce suit in San Francisco.

Estrangement Is Charged

The present suit, filed yesterday, contains charges that DeWalt cultivated the friendship of the plaintiff's wife, obtained her confidence and subjected her to his will and control to the end that she become estranged from her husband and antagonistic to his business interests.

Lashbaugh asks for $250,000 as "the reasonable value of the net profits that would accrue to plaintiff by reason of the continued operation of the mine from the date of the uncovering of a rich gold ledge to the date of the filing of the camplaint."

Exemplary damages of $25,000 also are asked.

Rich Ore Was Found

The complaint sets forth that on August 12, 1939, the plaintiff a partner with W. B. Brinker in the operation of the Seven Aces, uncovered a rich deposit at the mine. He took a small sackful of the ore to Brinker, it is stated, and Brinker had the essayed and reported to the defendant it ran $150,000 per ton. The complaint sets forth that from that time on Brinker began a conspiracy to keep Lashbaugh from holding an interest in the property.

It is charged that while under the influence of the defendants, Mrs. Lashbaugh endeavored to prosecute the plaintiff upon an unfounded criminal charge, which was dismissed by the municipal court in San Francisco on July 3, 1940.

Diverce Suit Was Engineered

Lashbaugh also charges the defendant Brinker subsidized the wife of the plaintiff by financial assistance in aiding her to move to San Francisco and establish residence to file a suit for divorce against the plaintiff.

The plaintiff quotes Mrs. Lashbaugh as telling her husband:

"You can't fight Brinker's money and it would be better to sell out and get some money and get out of the mine because he (Brinker) is going to take it away from you."

The complaint also charges through the acts of the defendants, the mine has been damaged extensively by accumulation of water in the shaft and tunnels caused by the fact Defendant Brinker prevented the plaintiffs use of the copartnership fund in his capacity as manager.

Brinker and DeWalt are residents of San Francisco. Johnson is a Nevada City man and holds an interest in the Seven Aces property.

YELLOWJACKET WORKING

It was reported here profitable ore is being milled.

High Cost Of Materials, Men Shortage Causes Mines Employment Loss

IDAHO-MARYLAND CORPORATION HAS 250 LESS MEN THAN BEFORE LAST MONTH'S STRIKE

A survey shows there are 2,221 men employed in the Nevada County gold mining industry with a payroll of $333,-150.

The number employed is a decrease from the total at work prior to the May strike at several of the Grass Valley mining properties.

Other contributory factors to the decrease were rising cost of materials, making it imossible for the mining operators to work ore formerly handled and the call of experienced miners to defense industry jobs.

The number of men employed at the Idaho-Maryland Corporation's properties is now 709, approximately 250 less than the number at work prior to the strike in May. The Golden Center Mine in Grass Valley is at present employing less men than were working at the time of the strike at that property.

At the Idaho-Maryland 213 are employed underground while the New Brunswick employs 246 underground. On the surface at those two properties 189 are employed and the private operating payroll is 47. Only 14 men are at work at the Bullion Mine, which employed 45 prior to the strike.

Employment at the Empire-Star Mines Company properties both here and in Grass Valley remained practically the same as last month except that a heavy decrease is noted in the number of men at the Zeibright.

The Lava Cap Mines are employing more men than last month. General Manager Otto Schiffner of the Lava Cap properties reports a shortage of experienced miners.

The Omega and Relief Hill Hydraulic Mines are continuing to operate but the season is expected to be over soon. Outside of the hydraulic mines there is very little activity in this county in the placer mining field.

The operating mines in the county the number of men employed and the payroll are as follows:

Miner Shortage At Lava Cap

General Manager Otto Schiffner of the Lava Ca pMines reports considerable development work has been discontinued to allow men employed formerly on that work to stope ore for the mill. Schiffner reports a shortage of experienced miners, although the rustling lines at the property have been long.

Hoist Equipment Being Installed At Stockton Hill

The installation of a double drum hoist at the Stockton Hill Mine, nine miles south of Grass Valley, is proceeding. When the installation of the hoist is completed the present one ton ore cars will be replaced with two and one half ton cars.

The new machinery unit is expected to speed production and enable the milling of 130 tons of ore per day.

Plans are also being made to sink the shaft to the 650 foot level. The Stockton Hill now employs 50 men. W. R. Woock of Auburn is in charge of operations.

Nevada City School Trustees Select Two New Teachers At Meeting Monday Night

The Nevada City Board of Education, at its meeting Monday night, named successors to Miss Mildred Severtson, former home economics instructor at the local high school and Miss Ivey Adele Ruitter, who recently resigned as arts and crafts teacher at the local school.

Mrs. Margaret Melton, You Bet teacher resigned. The local school trustees must fill one vacancy in the high school faculty, nam a successor to Mrs. Melton and select a successor to Cecil Klee, vice principal of the elementary school.

Morris Roberts recently moved to Walnut Creek to accept a position with the Union Oil Company. The newly married couple will make their home in Walnut Creek. The bride attended Ukiah schools.

SCHOOL COSTS MAY DROP

With living costs on the steady up-sweep and all other costs well along the same spiraling road, borne on the impetus of national defense it comes as a pleasant shock to hear of the probability of a falling off in demands of the public school system.

"If the facilities of a high school are adequate to care for its present enrollment. it would be unwise for the governing board to enlarge its physical plant or to increase its teaching staff without a very careful study of the probable enrollments in the next few years," advises the California Taxpayers' Association.

Except in large communities where large defense industries are centered. the group declares, regular day high schools will not increase their enrollment during the next eight or ten years.

Reason: the "short baby crops" of the 1920's are now leveling off high school enrollments.

In 1924 the number of births in California reached 86,899—and never hit that figure again in the following 13 years!

With a drop in enrollment, high school expenditures should drop also. advises the tax body, and any such decrease should be considered in school spending plans for the coming year.

We like our schools as everything else in California, to be bigger and better and finer year by year. But if a natural and inescapable decline in high school enrollment is due to occur, as indicated, we certainly will welcome any tax relief such a drop affords.—Contributed.

TOURIST DIVIDENDS

The All-California Association reported a few days ago that tourists in California spend more than $200,000,000 annually—enough to build Shasta Dam, the Los Angeles City Hall and the San Francisco Bay Bridge, combined!

Tourist trade. as a matter of fact. represents one of California's most profitable enterprises, with every member of the community sharing in the dividends. The dollars vacationists spend at resorts don't stay in the pockets of the resort keepers; they go to pay the butcher, the baker and the grocer and all the men and women who are employed, directly and indirectly. in catering to the needs of fun-hungry humanity. All California profits.

But aside from the dollars-and-cents end of the tourist business, there are many other compensation. Playing host to millions of vacationists and globe trotters is a pleasurable, satisfying busines. because there is undoubted happiness in contributing to the happiness of others. Then, too, we all have pardonable pride in our home state and our home town—and we must admit that it's more than nice to live right smack in the middle of the woold's most superb playground, where people from all corners of the earth doff their hats in sheer awe and wonderment.

THE POOR MAN PAYS

The experts have figured it out that one dollar out of every four earned by the American people will go for taxes for all the units of government, federal, state, county, city, etc.

The poor man may not realize that he pays many of these taxes, since he gets no income tax bill, and does not usually own a house. The truth is occurring to him that he pays in countless indirect ways. He is probably seeing by this time that when corporations and producers are taxed, they have to consider the taxes a part of the cost of business, and add them to the price of the goods. So the dollar which he pays for some article may very likely include 20 cents for taxes. When this truth is generally realized those useful statesman once known as treasury watchdogs will be very popular.—Contributed.

CONQUERORS MUST DIE

It is well to remember, perhaps, in this grim era of the swastika, that there have been other Hitlers, in other days—whose far-flung empires have fallen apart, and whose names are now simply something to trouble the students of history. Conquerors must die, but love of liberty never dies. That is the lesson one can learn from history. Napoleon died, a prisoner on St. Helena, at 52. That, incidentally, is Hitler's age right now. Alexander died before he was 34. Julius Caesar died at 56; Genghis Khan at 65. Each in his day, rattled his sword and dreamed of world conquest. Each, except for Genghis Khan, died comparatively young. And their worlds refused to stay conquered. If there was freedom of the press in Nazi Germany, which of course there isn't, we would append the note: "Berlin papers, please copy!"—Contributed.

Buying prosperity on credit is like borrowing money to pay debts. Either adds up to the same thing as digging a hole to get dirt to fill up another hole.

DOWN THROUGH THE AGES

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder, when on storm swept seas
The angry billows rise and roar,
Why they're reported, "mountain high,"
And never one inch less or more.

I wonder if an ocean billow "mountain high," wouldn't be an awe-inspiring sight, calculated to strike terror to the hearts of the boldest seamen. Of course those who report such ultra majestic spectacles are never specific. They never tell us which mountain has been equalled in height by an ocean wave so the entire field is left wide open for speculation.

Now, a wave that reached the altitude of Mount Shasta, Whitney or Hood, would be stupendous. In fact, the sight would call all the Hollywood adjectives into action. There would be a parade of colossals, marvelous, even swells and smarts. But, if the wave were only Black Butte or Banner Mountain high, sight seers would be affected less poignantly. Some would simply stand and stare, some might stand aghast or exclaim excitedly, "some wave!"

Now, I have never seen a mountain high wave—I don't think I would like to, but I can imagine what an ordeal it would be to be a passenger or even a deck hand on a ship that was making her way through and over such a storm swept tide. Suppose you were on such a ship in such a sea with the captain in command and the members of the crew at their posts. How would you like to have some officious person step to your side and say, "you can't trust 'em. The captain doesn't know where he is going. the pilot is making false reckonings, the mates are befuddled, the engineer is half asleep and the fireman is using the wrong kind of fuel." Can you imagine a silly situation? Would you lend an ear to such untimely criticism? Or would you be saying to yourself, "if there is anything I can do to help those in command to weather this storm. I wish they would tell me what it is so that I may make myself useful."

The Ship of State is now sailing through tempestuous seas. There are breakers, hidden shoals and ragged reefs ahead. The captain is in command and his chosen officers are at their posts.

We may feel that if we were in his place, we would sail a different course; but we are not in command. Neither are the loquacious gentlemen who shout, "you can't trust 'em. You can't trust officers or crew. They are deliberately charting a course which leads to disaster. Officers and crew are befuddled, untrustworthy, incompetent."

If that is true in this time of national history, all we who believe the calamity howlers—all we who fear the worst, should jump overboard and swim away to some serene, untroubled island in the west. Those who would have us doubt the course followed by captain, officers and crew, offer no alternative which may be pursued with safety.

We are sometimes told to sail along with the ship of detruction manned by a wolfish crew and commanded by a monster from the pit.

I don't know how you react to this strange advice, but as for me. I never believed it possible to appease a rattlesnake or a mad dog and I prefer not to sail the sea lanes with Captains Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin.

JAPANESE AND DUTCH AT ONE TIME FRIENDS

BERKELEY, June 19—The Dutch now harried by demands on the East Indies empire, held an esteemed place in the eyes of the Japanese until recent years, and for more than a century formed the only link between Nippon and the outside world.

The peculiar position of the Netherland's vast island empire is reviewed, in one of the few up-to-date authoritative books on the subject, by Dr. Amy Vandenbosch in a new publication of the University of California Press.

Dr. Vandenbosch is a professor of political science at the University of Kentucky. His book, entitled The Dutch East Indies, was first published in 1933, and has been revised in view of recent international developments.

"The Dutch and the Japanese have had long if not always the most honorable relations with each other" Dr. Vandenbosch writes. "The Dutch did not arrive in Japan until 1600, some sixty years after the Spanish and the Portuguese first made contact with that country, but from that time to the present the Netherlands alone of all the Western Powers has had continuous official relations with the Japanese government."

From 1640 to the middle of the 19th century when Japan cut herself off from the rest of the world the Dutch were allowed to maintain a trading post on the island of Deshima in the harbor of Nagasaki. The Dutch were also instrumental in opening up Japan to the western world.

fectly alone, as I travel now; there was a charming little girl named Dolores, in Spain, whose husband had deserted her.

Q. For you? A. No! I never did any of that sort of thing. Q. How many intrigues have you had? A. How many have you? Well, some, listen—none; I resided at the Court of Bavaria two years. Q. Who did you know there? A. Everybody but yourself; I knew all about several millions of persons; I knew the King of Bavaria. Mr. Whittlebacher, he was called—that was his family name. Q. Were you the mistress of the King? A. (Rising) What? (emphatically) No, sir; I'll take my oath on that book, (the Bible) which I read every night; I had no intrigues with the old man; I knew the King, and molded the mind of the King to the love of freedom; he took me before the whole court with his wife, and presented me as his best friend; I was on the stage in Bavaria; I was in Bavaria in 1847 and 1848; in 1849 the revolution occurred and liberty and I fled; the King and Queen supported me while I was there; I was engaged in political business; you might call me prime minister if you please, or, as the King said, I was the King, there was a man of straw there as prime minister; true, but he was only a man of straw; the memoirs that have been written about me are lies; that man is trying to get my memoirs, I suppose; (Mr. Jobson was writing) I was living in Piccadilly, London, in 1849, when I saw Jobson; I had come from Switzerland two months before; I was in India when very young; I was about three months old when I sailed for India the first time.

Q. Did you call on Mr. Jobson, first, before he called on you? A. (Starting up) No, no; (Laughing aloud) oh! that is so funny! I was called Countess of Landsfelt and not Mrs. James. Q. Didn't Mr. Jobson suscribe a guinea to prevent your being taken to the watchhouse? A. He hadn't a guinea. Q. Did he not give you a guinea to keep you from taking to the streets for a livelihood?

Witness — (Indignantly rising) Am I to be insulted? Gentlemen, will you not protect me?

The referee quieted her.

Referee — Mr. Schemerhorn should not have asked the question.

Witness — Schemerhorn? Is that his name? Oh, ho! I shall have some questions to ask him. (She wrote down the name of the plaintiff's counsel.)

At this point the reference was adjourned.

HISTORICAL ROLE OF S. F. BULLETIN TOLD BY U. C. MAN

BERKELEY, June 19.—The California era when months old news was as new when it arrived by Pony Express or Overland Mail as minutes old news is today as it is jerked from teletype machines was recalled today at the University of California.

In his doctor's thesis, entitled The San Francisco Bulletin, 1855-1865: A Study in the Beginnings of Pacific Coast journalism, John Carter Denton, graduate student in history details the early California news-gathering techniques.

The Bulletin, Denton points out, was founded by James King of William in 1855 for the purpose of waging war on corruption that plagued the city at that time. King was murdered in 1856 by one of his opponents a result of which was the formation of the Vigilance Committee.

"Before his death King made the Bulletin the leading newspaper in circulation in the city," Denton writes. "This gave the paper an initial advantage, but to maintain this position it was necessary that it do more than merely follow the reform policy of its founder; it must also perform effectively the primary function of a newspaper, that is, provide news for its readers.

"The history of the Bulletin from 1856 to the end of the Civil War was partly that of a courageous and vigorous editorial policy, but even more important was the expension of its news gathering facilities during a period of constant change and improvement in communication and transportation between the Eastern states and the Pacific Coast."

OLSON'S VETO MAKES MUDDLE OF SRA RELIEF

By ALLEN G. THURMAN
Assemblyman

The 54th session of the state legislature adjourned sine die Monday evening, the senate concluding its business at 10 p. m. while the assembly adjourned at midnight, after spending nearly two hours in a futile attempt to pass a relief bill. With the upper house having adjourned any action on the part of the asssembly to pass a relief bill was an idle jesture. Its passage in the lower house after the senate had adjourned would have served no purpose as both houses must approve all measures.

The session just adjourned was the second longest in history, being second only to the session of 1939.

It is unfortunate that no appropriation for relief was made. Both houses did, however, by a majority vote, pass a bill returning the administration of relief to the counties. This measure received a majority vote as above stated, in both houses. The governor, on the other hand, vetoed the bill following which the senate was unable to override the veto, lacking a two thirds vote.

Substitute relief appropriation measures were introduced all of which failed to receive a majority vote in either house.

In the matter of relief there was considerable difference of opinion. A strong group in both houses desired to eliminate SRA entirely, declaring the SRA to be a political cancer. Instead of allocating funds for SRA, this group desired to allocate additional funds to the counties to take care of their old and blind problems. The administration forces opposed this program refusing to allow SRA to be wiped off the statute books. As a result, after several days of conference, between the various groups, it was impossible to arrive at an agreement.

Whether the governor will call the legislature back into special session we cannot say but unless he does, some 100,000 persons will be without relief due to the fact the relief agency has no funds to continue.

According to the latest figures there are 27,500 relief cases which approximates the 100,000 persons mentioned.

The return of relief to the counties would have solved the problem according to teh majority of the membeers of both houses. The governor thought otherwise with the result no allocation whatever has been made for state relief.

Next week, in our final article, we will give a brief resume of the legislation of interest to the people of this district which passed during the recent session.

LABOR BOSSES ARE REBUKED BY LEGISLATURE

By RALPH H. TAYLOR

If any general conclusion can be drawn from the 1941 session of the state legislature, it is simply this: The reaction against bureaucracy and extremism has finally set in!

The legislature rebelled time after time against excessive and discriminatory regulation — cracking down on bureaucratic boards and the commissions, refusing to broaden their regulatory powers and trimming such powers where they had been abused by high handed administrators.

The legislature rebelled again, as it had two years earlier, against governmental extravagance—whittling down budgets, clamping on spending restrictions and refusing, in most instances, to authorize new experiments.

And the legislature rebelled with a vengeance against labor excesses and extremism—standing up, under terrific pressure, against labor bossism.

In courageous action, the outstanding avhievement of the 1941 session was the legislature's override of Governor Olson's veto of the bill outlawing "hot cargo" and the secondary boycott

That battle marked the high point of the session, not just because it was fought against great odds, with both labor and the Olson administration determined to kill the bill at all costs, but because the outcome of the battle was eloquent, spectacular evidence of the general public's reaction against class selfishness and extremism.

When the legislature over rode Governor Olson's veto it served blunt notice that the period when organized labor could do no wrong is at an end—and that labor, like any other section of the community, must conduct itself with a decent regard for the rights and priviliges of others.

There are reports now that organized labor will invoke the referendum against the bill and carry the issue of secondary boycott to the people at the next general election. If that happens, this writer predicts that labor bosses are due for a sad awakening—and that when the ballots are counted, the rank and file members of labor may conclude that they need new leadership.

The legislative session this year was a trying, difficult, exhausting session—not only for the members, but for everyone whose business requires close attention to legislative activity. With the legilature's work overshadowed, at least in front page importance, by the rapid march of national and international events, the men of the legislature carried the heaviest burden in many years. And by the same token, the men who represent business and agriculture and public and semi-public organizations at the legislature likewise carried heavier loads, often making the battle for organizations which were not represented, as well as their own.

Just how much the public will know or remember of the battles made at Sacramento this year is problematical. With Britain taking the offensive and marching into Syria, with Hitler plotting the battle of Suez, and with the United States Army opening strike bound factories—the story of legislativ battles lost or won is somewhat prosaic. But actually, the story of the 1941 session of the legislature is of vital, fundamental importance for it reflects a growing impatience with classism and minority domination—a stern reaction against extremism and a new trend toward sanity.

DIST. FAIR AT AUBURN OPENS FRIDAY MORN

The Placer District Fair grounds at Auburn opens tomorrow when the judgs will begin viewing livestock belonging to owners who will divide several thousand dollars in prize money as a result of the three-day exhibition.

When the entry books closed last evening, Secretary-Manager Ray Carlisle announced the greatest number of contenders in the five year history of the fair had paid their fees and were on the official entry blanks.

Highlights of the 1941 celebration include two grand horse shows, scheduled for Saturday night at 7:45 p. m. and Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m. The night show is held under the $7,000 lights belonging to the fair association. All events take place in front of the $30,000 grandstand on the grounds.

Entertainment has not been neglected by the sponsors of the celebration in Auburn. Merchants are providing a free entertainment twice daily that includes Jack Cavanaugh, featuring rhythm with rope, the beautiful LaBard girls from San Francisco, the Kramerettes and their puppet tricks, Red Johnson, who makes a boomerang out of a straw hat, and Lumir Hampl, the novelty musician.

Marlo and LeFors, who do a death defying trapeze act without the benefit of nets, some hundred feet above the ground, and Sonny Moore and his trained animals, back from a triumphant tour in southern California are among the feature performers.

Politically Speaking

By JOHN W. DUNLAP
United Press Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO, June 19.—One of the most serious conflicts between state and federal jurisdiction is coming to a head on July 1 when the federal social security board says California must conform to federal regulations or lose its old age pension payments.

The showdown has been brewing for many months. California protests the interference of federal rules, particularly on the question of what outside income an old age pensioner may have to be entitled to full benefits.

Since California receives about $38,000,000 annually from federal sources in this regard, it is not a matter to be taken lightly. The legislature dispatched four members to Washington to confer with federal officials, without too much success in winning the fight for California.

The major demand of the federal board is that California discontinue permission for the pension recipients to earn up to $15 monthly in addition to the maximum pension of $40. The various exemptions permitted under the state law include up to $15 per menth for income from work done by the pension recipient, rent of a home, sale of garden produce or firewood, and the value of gifts other than contributions by relatives who are legally liable for the aged person's support.

The restrictions on pensions would affect about 15 per cent of the aged aid recipients in the state, or about 22,650.

Senator Robert Kenny, one of the committee which went to Washington, held little hope that California could win the argument. He said "the problem can be worked out only by California receding from her present position, which is that we think our old age pension system is pretty good and that it is distasteful for us to have some one else telling us how to run our affairs."

"However," Kenny added, "the federal board controls the purse strings and I would vote to comply with the minimum conditions it now says the state should meet. These conditions are not as drastic as we thought at first and it may be that we can meet them without yielding too much. I hesitate, however, to say what the legislature will do."

Kenny said the committee obtained assurance, however, that if an individual person's needs were found exceed the $40 maximum then the outside income and resources would not have to be deducted from the total amount paid.

Another stipulation of the federal board is discontinuance of the state's practice of permitting the pensioners to live in their own homes without deducting from the pension the rental value of the property.

Another amendment provides that each state shall provide safeguards against disclosure of the names of relief recipients.

One reason the legislature has gone down fighting is the anxiety to avoid a fuss with the elder citizens. As demonstrated in the various ham and egg pension campaigns, these persons wield a potent influence at the polls, and no legislator will go out of his way deliberately to offend a voter. Someone has to take the blame if the restrictions are clamped down, and the general lack of understanding of legislative matters is more than likely apt to pin the ons on the state lawmakers.

The basis argument against the federal ruling is that the old people should be encouraged to take care of themselves and become self-supporting as possible. Yet, this is discouraged under the new ruling.

To explain further, the $40 maximum pension is contributed on the basis of $20 by the federal government, $10 by the county and $10 by the state.

Several changes in this proportion have been suggested by the legislature, the most recent of which just passed the assembly (June 5). It would raise the state's share from 50 per cent to 70 per cent of the matching with the county, automatically dropping the county to 30 per cent. A companion bill would require the state for the first time to guarantee 25 per cent of the county's administrative cost.

The increasing burden on the counties from mounting pension rolls is acutely realized by the legislature. There has been considerable jockeying of the situation because of politics but the basic need of help for the counties likely will produce remedial legislation before the legislature adjourns next weekend.

Taking care of the old people is one of the nation's most pressing problems, particularly with increased taxes imminent to support the defense program. And California is finding out that a big stick wielded by a powerful federal board is pretty difficult to dodge.

Large Scale Development Program Planned At Noted Gaston Property

A three mile road has been completed to the property, and arrangements made for installation of mining machinery, preliminary to a large-scale development campaign.

The mine is said to be under bond and lease to J. L. Warner and associates, with ample capital available for its rehabilitation.

Large reserves of commercial ore are said to be exposed in old workings. The veins formerly mined were wide and of fair mill grade at the old price of gold.

Located in the early days of the Washington district when the Yuba, Mayflower and other famous properties were employing hundreds of men, the Gaston is credited with producing gold worth more than $4,000,000. It was recently reopened after a long period of idleness.

SCIENCE MUST CURE SOCIAL ILLS IT MADE

LOS ANGELES, June 19. — The greatest hope for ameliorating the present distressing state of world affairs is through education for security conceived in its broadest sense, declares Dr. Percival M. Symonds, professor of education at Columbia University's Teachers College, who this week completed arrangements for a counseling conference on Newer Concepts of Guidance to be had from July 9 to 30 inclusive on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

"I believe that the present world crisis is a direct and necessary outcome of the tremendous advance in science which has provided man with multiplied power and unlimited mechanics for doing the work which once had to be done, if at all, by slow manual toil. This increased power, by dislocating employment, forcing men into meaningless and monotonous work, and giving rise to unemployment and occupational readjustments has caused widespread insecurity. World War I left behind it a trail of economic maladjustments and the present crisis has broken out in precisely those countries where economic maladjustment were most severe. The world has reached its present ugly state because of insecurity," believes Dr. Symonds.

"Security has two aspects: On the one hand it refers to the economic and physical safety which our environment provides. But it also refers to an emotional state which is an outgrowth of the courage and stability of our parents. It is well known that some persons go to pieces at the least frustration, while others stand firm and secure even when surrounded by catastrophic events."

WORK NEW CHANNEL

Leonard, the man who directed that memorable film, also directed "Ziegfeld Girl."

Production numbers ranging from the typical Ziegfeldian "stairway" and a fantasy laid in the tropics, to the Finale, using the world's largest drum, have settings by Cedric Gibbons scaled to a lavish, one dollar note. The numbers feature 100 of the nation's leading beauties with the twelve front line showgirls chosen from among 600 apulicants. Enhancing their beauty are Adrian's imaginatively designed costumes made from millions of sequins, and rhinestones, spangles and costume jewels.

Empire-Star Files Suit To Recover Unemployment Insurance Tax For Leasers

The Empire Star Mines, Ltd., which operates five gold mining properties in this county, filed a suit in the superior court against the California Department of Employment seeking to recover $710.02, representing 3.7 per cent of the total amount received by leasers and paid to the department of employment under protest.

The Empire-Star Mines claims the sum "constitutes an unlawful exaction by the payment to the defendant of unemployment reserves contributed on payment made by plaintiff to individuals who were not during the period herein mentioned employes of or employes by plaintiff."

The contention of the Empire-Star Company is that leasers are independent contractors and not employes of the mining concern.
